Working Group on Children and Armed Conflict

Conclusions on children and armed conflict in the Philippines

1. At its 41st meeting, on 25 October 2013, the Security Council Working Group on Children and Armed Conflict examined the third report of the Secretary-General on children and armed conflict in the Philippines (S/2013/419), which was introduced by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict. The Deputy Permanent Representative of the Philippines also addressed the Working Group.

2. The members of the Working Group welcomed the presentation of the report of the Secretary-General, submitted in accordance with Security Council resolutions 1612 (2005), 1882 (2009), 1998 (2011) and 2068 (2012), and took note of the analysis and recommendations contained therein.

3. The members of the Working Group welcomed the commitment of the Philippines to develop an operational strategy for its armed forces and encouraged it to keep the United Nations country task force on monitoring and reporting informed about its progress. The steps taken by the Philippines in cooperating with the United Nations country task force on monitoring and reporting were also welcomed. Actions of non-State armed groups remain a major obstacle to ending and preventing all violations and abuses committed against children in the situation of armed conflict in the Philippines.

4. The Deputy Permanent Representative of the Philippines reaffirmed his Government's firm and demonstrated resolve to protect children and their rights, especially those situated in areas of conflict. He stressed that the general decline in the number of large-scale armed hostilities indicated advancements in the respective peace processes. He also informed the members of the Working Group about key institutional, policy framework and legal developments that had occurred after the reporting period, such as the creation of a monitoring, reporting and response system for grave child rights violations in situations of armed conflict. He expressed regret that some of the reported violations had occurred two years ago and pointed out that the process of preparing the Secretary-General's report on children and armed conflict in the Philippines had revealed gaps that needed to be addressed. In his Government's view, progress could be made in improving reporting by obtaining clear, accurate and verifiable data. He also stressed that in his Government's opinion, the Security Council might want to consider a stronger focus on the encouragement that delisting could bring to sustaining the efforts to protect children in armed conflict.

5. Further to the meeting, and subject to and consistent with applicable international law and relevant Security Council resolutions, including resolutions 1612 \(2005\), 1882 \(2009\), 1998 \(2011\) and 2068 \(2012\), the Working Group agreed to the direct action set out below.
